

Brexit Statement

It is still unclear of the precise challenges that businesses in the United Kingdom will face after leaving the European Union on the 31 January 2020. The rules governing the new relationship between the European Union and the United Kingdom took effect on 1 January 2021 and only in the coming years will these challenges become more apparent.

At KCM Waste Management Ltd, we can promise that our continued planning and thorough investigation into all areas of our trade with the European Union and further afield means we are confident that the effects of Brexit will not affect our ability to supply our customers.

Our products and services will remain largely unaffected by many of the possible challenges importers and exporters of goods may face, however, we will continue to examine and monitor the landscape in relation to our main business operations including:

- Selling services to the EU and internationally
- Purchasing services from the EU and internationally
- Financial impact of any currency fluctuations
- Trading with our European and international supply chain partners
- Regulations in the EU and international countries that we currently trade with
- Legal, regulatory and administrative changes

We will continue to work with our supply chain partners, senior leadership team and external advisors to ensure a smooth transition over the coming post Brexit years and beyond.
